
INSTRUCTIONAL MATERIALS FOR USE IN
SOUTH CAROLINA PUBLIC SCHOOLS
FOR THE 2004–05 SCHOOL YEAR

South Carolina Department of Education

February 2004

NOTE

- This document can be found on the Web site for adopted instructional materials at www.sctextbooks.com under “What’s New.” The Department of Education’s editorial staff has not proofed the annotations in the document.
- The deadline of April 2, 2004, for reporting your selection of state adopted texts must be adhered to particularly if you are serving students in your district who are blind or visually impaired. District orders for textbooks that must be transcribed into braille are due on April 15, 2004, and orders for texts that must be transcribed into large print are due on May 5, 2004. A designated individual in your district places these orders, typically the special education coordinator or his/her designee. Transcribing texts into braille or large print requires a minimum of 10–12 weeks per text. Various vendors outside of South Carolina do the transcription for orders from around the country, which makes it most important that orders from South Carolina are sent to the vendors promptly. By law, a student with a disability must have equal access to his/her education, including access to his/her textbooks on the first day of school. If the student does not have textbooks due to a delay on the part of the district, then that child is eligible to receive compensatory educational services at district expense.

Please provide this urgent information to the designated individual in your district or the special education coordinator.

BUSINESS AND MARKETING—BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

Business Communication

Pearson Education, Inc., publishing as Prentice Hall

Business Communication Today, 7th Edition

04-80010 Student Edition

Author: Bovee

0130928585

09–12

2003

$67.97

Business Communication Today teaches students to communicate in the workplace and in real world situations. Its target audience is grades 9–12, however, the text appears to be written on an eleventh grade reading level. Major emphasis is placed on written communication, both informally and formally. The layout of the textbook includes charts, pictures, diagrams, and other visual examples. The text gives students a realistic understanding of the fundamental concepts of business communication. The textbook is written so that students can follow three steps: planning, writing, and completing business messages. Also included with this edition is a study guide and instructor's manual.

Author: Means

0538436824

09–12

2004

$35.25

Business Communications is written and laid out in a format that is easy to read, understand, and follow. It provides students with the instructional tools they need to communicate effectively. It is up-to-date with technological communications including e-mail, telecommunications software, multimedia, and on-line information. The chapters end with a discussion on ethics, and technology. Also the skills from the Secretary's Commission on Achieving Necessary Skills (SCANS) are identified throughout the text and objectives are pointed out as they are discussed. Diversity is a key issue throughout the textbook. Several chapters focus/discuss case studies while others focus on teamwork or Internet usage. The second and third chapters are dedicated to instruction in nonverbal communication and listening skills and include instruction in cultural diversity and teamwork. These chapters cover in-depth materials about acceptable and non-acceptable business practices as related to communication. Reading is discussed briefly in the first chapter. A study guide and instructor's manual are available.

Business Math, High School Edition identifies basic spreadsheet terminology as stated in the curriculum standards. Spreadsheet terminology is introduced in chapter three where students are instructed in using Microsoft Excel to create an operating expenses budget. This chapter also introduces formulas but does not instruct students in the formatting of the overall spreadsheet (example: merge and center, changing cells to percentages, widening columns, etc.) The chapter concludes with more practice on creating an operating expenses budget. Additional challenging spreadsheet activities are found in the chapter's overview. Several chapters have spreadsheet exercises included that require students to write various formulas to solve business math problems. The supplemental study wizard also instructs students in the use of spreadsheets to solve business math problems.

In the text, Business Math, spreadsheets are introduced in the "Technology Workshop" in the first chapter. Students enter data into an existing worksheet, analyze the spreadsheet's output, and then design their own spreadsheet for analysis. Each chapter includes the "Technology Workshop" that instructs students in completing spreadsheet templates to solve and analyze business problems, including payroll, interest earned, bank reconciliation, etc. Although this text covers in-depth use of spreadsheets including complex formulas, no instruction is given in terminology or spreadsheet formatting. The terminology is used within the directions without definition. Overall, this book does an excellent job of introducing spreadsheets as a powerful business tool.

The Harcourt Trophies series is an integrated language arts program that encompasses reading, writing, communication, and research. The stories are based upon real-life experiences and quality children's literature. Harcourt Trophies has multi-leveled guided reading books which accompany each story. Each lesson contains a variety of activities that address student needs. The program includes intervention activities for students having difficulty and challenge activities for enrichment. The teacher edition is well organized and easy to use. The South Carolina English language arts curriculum standards are clearly addressed and referenced within the series as well as the components of effective reading instruction as referenced by the National Reading Panel. It contains phonics activities that include blending and word building activities, phonemic awareness activities that draw attention to the sounds in spoken language through poems, and read alouds. Harcourt Trophies also includes fluency assessments and oral reading passages. Vocabulary words and comprehension strategies are included with each story.

Houghton Mifflin Reading: The Nation's Choice is an integrated language arts series that incorporates leveled texts. Houghton Mifflin Reading supports the five components of effective reading instruction as outlined by National Reading Panel through explicit and systematic instruction in phonemic awareness, phonics, vocabulary development, fluency, and comprehension. This reading series also addresses the South Carolina English language arts curriculum standards through a complete scope and sequence of skills and strategies that integrate the areas of reading, writing, communication, and research. Houghton Mifflin's Leveled Readers are designed to meet the needs of students who are below, on, or above level in reading. The Language Support readers are specifically intended for use with English language learners or students who need support with language development. Assessment options are provided and a wide variety of support materials are available.

Scott Foresman Reading is a comprehensive integrated language arts program that addresses the five essential components of effective reading instruction (comprehension, vocabulary, phonics, phonemic awareness, and fluency). The instructional design is sequential and explicit, and includes ample practice. The South Carolina English language arts curriculum standards are also addressed. Student anthologies, leveled texts, vocabulary building activities, grammar and writing lessons, and standardized assessment practice are included in the core components. Support materials include research-based assessments to guide instruction, an early reading intervention program, a professional development series, and on-line support.

Rigby Literacy is a balanced language arts program. Phonemic awareness and explicit phonics are carefully integrated in the early reading levels. A combination of fiction and nonfiction texts is precisely leveled to build vocabulary, fluency, and comprehension. Authentic assessments are woven throughout the program. The South Carolina English language arts curriculum standards are addressed through a variety of reading, writing, communication, and research activities. A wide variety of support materials are available.

Open Court Reading is a comprehensive theme-based program that emphasizes explicit instruction. It is structured to teach children through a systematic scaffolding of skills that build upon one another. Lesson components include direct instruction by the teacher including modeling, application, and practice by the student reinforced by ongoing assessment. Primary grade instruction emphasizes phonics and phonemic awareness while middle grades instruction emphasizes word knowledge, comprehension, and inquiry learning. The writing process is an instructional component at each grade level. The South Carolina English language art curriculum standards are clearly addressed.

Wright Group Literacy is a literature-based integrated language arts series that provides for the inclusion of all subject areas. Leveled texts in conjunction with guided reading and shared reading formats provide opportunities to address student needs in individual, small, and whole group settings. Graphic organizers create a visual aid for students to organize and record information. The five essential components of effective reading instruction (comprehension, vocabulary, phonics, phonemic awareness, and fluency) are addressed in this series. The South Carolina English language arts curriculum standards are also addressed through a variety of activities. Ongoing assessments allow for continuous evaluation of student progress. Support materials are available.

Calculus I with Precalculus

04-20010 Pupil's Edition

Author: Larson, et al

0618087605 11-12 2002 $83.67

Calculus I with Precalculus is a very good text for a non-Advanced Placement (AP) Calculus course. It has an integrated approach between pre-calculus and calculus topics and integrates the use of graphing calculators.

Pearson Education, Inc., publishing as Prentice Hall

Calculus with Applications, 7th Edition

04-20020 Student Edition

Author: Lial, Greenwell, and Ritchey

0201773252 09-12 2002 $79.97

Calculus with Applications is a very good text for a non-AP Calculus course. It emphasizes applied mathematics and the use of technology; however, it is not appropriate for an AP Calculus course.

Advanced Mathematics: Precalculus with Discrete is designed for the above-average student who has completed Algebra II. Expanding students' knowledge of functions with an introduction to calculus, this text provides exposure in graph theory, matrices, counting techniques, iterations and recursive relations, and linear programming. It provides an in-depth exploration into vectors, sequences and series, matrices and determinants and special functions. Included throughout the text are problem solving using real-world applications and reasoning by proof. Support is provided for graphing calculator technology. On-line support is available. This text focuses on alternate topics and related objectives as stated in the South Carolina Discrete Mathematics course outline.

Mathematics All Around is designed for the average student. Applications throughout the text motivate the discussion of decision making, graph theory, counting techniques, recursive relations, and linear programming using computer algebra systems. It also includes an extensive discussion on logic, sequences and series, and set theory. It provides on-line support for teachers and students as well as a digital video tutor. Further enrichment is provided through exhaustive explorations of voting, apportionment, and consumer mathematics. This text covers the primary content of South Carolina Discrete Mathematics course outline while omitting matrix theory.

Understanding Basic Statistics is designed for use in a beginning statistics course for those students whose mathematical background is limited to basic algebra. The book uses a non-theoretical approach to provide a foundation in such core topics as descriptive statistics, probability, estimation, hypothesis testing, and linear regression. Students learn the fundamentals of statistics through the use of interesting real-world examples, real data sets, and technology. Sample problems using the TI-83 Plus and Microsoft Excel are included throughout the book as well as on the StatPass CD-ROM (included with the student edition of the text).

Elementary Statistics is designed for use in a beginning statistics course for those students whose mathematical background is limited to basic algebra. The student-friendly text emphasizes the uses of statistics, not merely the computation of formulas. Topics for exercises are taken from a variety of disciplines, including business, psychology, sports, health, and political science. The CD-based lecture series and reteaching videos (free with the adoption of the text) provide support for students who miss class or need to study materials at their own pace. Step-by-step technology examples are included throughout the book for the TI-83, Minitab®, and Microsoft Excel.

Elementary Statistics: A Step-by-Step Approach is designed for the student who has successfully completed Algebra II and who has an above-average reading ability. It has a non-theoretical approach with no formal proofs. The book offers clearly explained step-by-step examples. Instructions for Minitab, Microsoft Excel, and TI-83 Plus graphing calculator are incorporated throughout the text as well as data projects using technology. Each chapter has clearly stated objectives, most of which are included in the South Carolina course outline for Probability, Statistics, and Data Analysis.

Anthony's Text of Anatomy and Physiology, 17th Edition

04-30020 Student Edition

Author: Thibodeau and Patton

0323016308 09–12 2003 $61.16

This college-level textbook is most suitable for the honors and Advanced Placement courses. The anatomy is very detailed with excellent illustrations. The physiology is less extensive with a few minor errors. The book provides examples of diseases for most chapters and there are brief self-assessments at the end of each major topic area and at the end of the major topic discussion.

Clinical cases and practical application are provided in sidebars throughout. Upon adoption, an electronic image collection (containing PowerPoint slide presentations) an Instructor's laboratory manual and an Instructor's Resource CD-ROM are provided free. The student laboratory manual, one each per classroom of fifteen students, can be requested from the Mosby representative at no charge and may be copied for local use. Documentation of this permission is on file at the State Department of Education.

04-30025 Student Edition

Author: Thibodeau and Patton

0323013392 09–12 2002 $38.66

The Human Body in Health and Disease serves as a guide for students in the health professions beginning their exploration of human structure and function and basic mechanisms of human disease. It is most appropriate for a college-prep level course. There is a strong emphasis on the anatomical content, but less emphasis on physiological content. Content is organized and attractively presented. Objectives are listed at the beginning of each chapter and student tips are listed at the end of each chapter.

The readability level is college-preparatory level. It features a strong emphasis on disease/clinical applications, research issues and trends, and health and well being. It is accompanied by a computerized test-bank, an electronic image collection, and an instructor's resource manual.

Also available by request from the textbook representative are a laboratory manual, an instructor's laboratory manual, and a study guide for the teacher. Copy privileges are granted for the above ancillary materials. Documentation of this permission is on file at the State Department of Education.

Author: Marieb

0805300120 11–12 2003 $67.47

This seventh edition anatomy and physiology textbook is recommended for a college-preparatory level course. The focus of this text is on introducing students interested in health-related fields, college-bound students, and others who seek a general understanding of the structure and function of the human body, while including clinical applications, related professions, and developmental aspects of the system.

Upon adoption of this textbook, all ancillary materials are available, upon request to the publisher by the teacher, including the laboratory manual and the instructor's guides. Documentation of this permission is on file at the State Department of Education. An interactive Web site is available with this program.

Body Structures and Functions, 10th Edition

04-30050 Student Edition

Author: Scott and Fong

1401809960 09-12 2004 $44.00

This edition of Body Structures and Functions is recommended for a tech-prep level introductory course in anatomy and physiology. Reading level is 9.0. The focus of this text is on health science and medical careers. The textbook uses medical terminology extensively to support the content. Each chapter includes case studies to promote critical thinking and simple laboratory activities that do not require sophisticated equipment.

While the anatomy content is appropriate for tech-prep students, the physiology content is weak. In addition, some of the graphics are of poor quality. The CD-ROM may be difficult for some students to navigate, but technical support is available at 1-800-518-5648. Teachers have permission to copy the CD-ROM as well as the student workbook pages. Documentation of this permission is on file at the State Department of Education.

Astronomy

Kendall/Hunt Publishing Company

Project Star: The Universe in Your Hands, 2nd Edition

04-30120 Student Edition

Author: Harvard-Smithsonian Astrophysics Center

0787260150 09-12 2001 $49.99

Project Star provides numerous inquiry activities designed to give students hands-on understanding of basic astronomical concepts. Most activities should provide a clear understanding of basic concepts of celestial motion and time, cosmic scales, and spectral analysis, but do not require advanced technology.

Modern astronomy focuses on gathering information through large observatories, orbiting telescopes, and interplanetary probes; thus, extra materials from NASA Resource Centers and reliable Internet resources will be required in the classroom to supplement the text. The text does include a CD. Teachers also need to augment Project Star with content materials and inquiry kits for this purpose. Kits for most activities in Project Star are available and must be purchased separately.

0130943347 11-12 2002 $66.47

Publisher/Program/Title No.	ISBN	Grade	Copyright	Price
-----------------------------	------	-------	-----------	-------

Astronomy Today is a college-introductory text that is written at a secondary reading level (11–12), and, therefore, provides excellent coverage of a wide range of topics. Basic concepts of heavenly motion and scale, light and spectra, and comparative planetology to more advanced concepts of active galactic nuclei and modern cosmology are included in the text.

Though the reading level is slightly higher, Astronomy Today provides excellent imagery and graphics to relate material and in-text cross-referencing to prior content. Within each chapter are many supplemental reading sidebars pertaining to technology, biography, careers, etc. Each text includes a CD of Sky Chart III with related activities at chapter ends. The text has a companion Web site for student and teacher access that is constantly referenced throughout. Astronomy Today does come with a teacher copy of excellent lab and inquiry activities authored by Michael Seeds.

Foundations of Astronomy, 7th Edition
04-30150 Student Edition with The Sky CD

Author: Seeds
0534392040 09–12 2003 $65.00

Foundations of Astronomy covers the basic concepts of astronomy utilizing images, graphics, numerous problem examples, and diverse resources. Foundations of Astronomy is a college-introductory text, but written at a secondary level (9-12) that is easy to navigate and includes many math problems, is logically sequenced, and strong on development of student critical thinking skills. Students are also encouraged to base conclusions on both qualitative and quantitative data.

Each chapter includes a number of reading sidebars that supplement the content, but is lacking in exposing readers to careers in astronomy. Foundations of Astronomy includes a CD of The Sky and a companion Web site as additional resources. End of chapter inquiry activities are primarily computer based and an additional lab manual purchase is recommended for supplementing inquiry.

Holt Environmental Science	Author: Arms, et al
04-30320 Student Edition, Print	0030661749	09–12	2004	$55.65

Holt Environmental Science is an excellent book for high school Environment Science. This book is teacher friendly, provides “bell ringers”, as well as exhaustive supplemental material. This book is an appropriate first-year teacher package and develops the science behind the environment. This book needs supplemental material in earth dynamics, the marine ecosystem, land use, and economics.

Global Science: Energy, Resources, Environment, 5th Edition	Author: Christensen
04-30350 Student Edition	0787290106	09–12	2000	$54.99

This is a hands-on text for the kinesthetic learner and is appropriate for the tech-prep and college-prep student. It promotes student observation, analysis and drawing conclusions from situations related to resources and the environment. This book is graphically pleasing, and particularly suitable for the average to below-average reader. Class activities are integrated into the book. This book does not provide any ancillary material for the teacher but every major concept has its own activity. This book will need supplementary material to cover various concepts included in the tool used to evaluate the text.

Environmental Science—Advanced Placement

Glencoe/McGraw–Hill
Environmental Science: A Global Concern, 7th Edition	Author: Cunningham and Saigo
04-30370 Student Edition	0070294267	09–12	2003	$76.50

Environmental Science: A Global Concern is ideal for an 11th–12th grade honors or college-prep course and would be suitable for the Advanced Placement course with supplemental material. This book has a definite eye appeal where the photographs pull you into the book. Case studies and “What You Can do” boxes enable students to use higher order thinking skills to make decisions about the environment. Accompanying lab manual provides inquiry type labs as well as traditional labs. The CD ROM and on-line Web site are strong components of this text. Included are online quizzes, essay quizzes, and Web links for each chapter. This is a survey book where topics are treated broadly. This book is especially applicable to a one-semester survey course. The prerequisite for this book should be Biology I or Reproductive Health.

04-30380 Student Edition, High School Binding	0130936545	11–12	2002	$73.97

This textbook is designed for students in Advanced Placement or honors Environmental Science. It has the flexibility of being taught in one-semester block or two semesters. This book focuses on basic ecological concepts with an interdisciplinary connection to both biology and chemistry. It is particularly strong in populations, urban sprawl, and biodiversity. Needs supplemental material on minerals, earth dynamics and marine ecosystems.

Living in the Environment: Principles, Connections and Solutions, 13th Edition
04-30390 Student Edition with CD	0534397980	09–12	2004	$74.00

Living in the Environment: Principles, Connections and Solutions is a comprehensive book for Advanced Placement courses and high-level readers. This book is not recommended for average to low-level readers. It is up to date on sections on infectious disease, genetic engineering, and wildlife conservation. One advantage to this book is that it addresses major environmental topics in at least a cursory manner. Case studies and current events are used to showcase recent environmental issues. This book needs supplemental materials on earth science and marine topics. Available is a Web connection to current literature with the topics correlated to the book.

Glencoe/McGraw–Hill
Glencoe Science: Level Blue, 1st Edition
04-30520 Student Edition	007828242X	09	2003	$55.98

The Glencoe text was found to be visually stunning with a good layout and support materials. Throughout the text coordinating materials from National Geographic, The Princeton Review, and Time Magazine were included. The text provided an overview of the four major science areas: Biology, Chemistry, Physical Science, and Earth Science. The text did have weaknesses in the following standards content areas. Biology: protein synthesis, DNA, RNA, protein regulation, cell structure and theory, photosynthesis. Chemistry/Physical Science: solutions, reactions, and acids and bases. The physics portion of physical science was weak in all areas except for Newton's Laws, Earth: geochemical cycles and evolution of Earth. According to Glencoe, the text is on a reading level of 7.7 and were designed for pre-tech-prep students. The consensus of the committee is that this text would be appropriate for an Integrated Science course that focuses on an overview of the major science areas. Additional support materials are available free of charge from the publisher upon request.

Holt Science and Technology provides a series of modules from which each district may select four or five that can be bound together in a single text. The modules cover all of the standards in the content areas of: biology, chemistry (weak in solutions and chemical reactions), physical science, and earth science. The text has a good layout and good resources that include math and reading strategies, opportunities for writing, CNN links, SciLinks, and Smithsonian links. There is a good integration from different disciplines and a strong technical base. The text is very flexible in meeting each district's individual needs, however there is an overall weakness in transitioning between topics. The committee has determined the target audience of this text to be students who need extra preparation for a Physical Science course that includes improvement in math and reading skills. According to Holt, texts are on a reading level ranging from 6-7.2. The consensus of the committee is that this text provides good flexibility and is appropriate for any district that wishes to focus their Integrated Science program on a specific content area; however, the transitioning weakness does need to be considered when selecting individual modules. Additional support materials are available free of charge from the publisher upon request.

The Lab-Aids text, Issues, Evidence, and You, provides a hands-on approach to teaching science. This book affords the teacher numerous opportunities to teach the inquiry standards and provides an integrated approach to science by teaching from a real-life point of view. While the text provides excellent support in the inquiry standards it lacks in content areas, such as biology, chemistry, earth, and physical science. The committee has determined the target audience of this text would be kinesthetic, non-traditional learners who are low in confidence in science. According to Lab-Aids, the text is on a reading level of 8.6 and targets students in grades 5-8. The Lab-Aids text would also serve as an excellent supplemental resource to a course text. It is the committee's consensus that this text would be appropriate for a strictly inquiry-based curriculum.

Civics: Participating in Government
04-40050 Student Edition

Author: Davis and Fernlund
0130628670 07–12 2003 $57.97

Civics: Participating in Government is organized, easy to use, and easy to understand. It also connects the two subjects, government and economics, in a manner that provides students with the opportunity to see how they are interrelated. The publisher provides transparencies, webbing charts, both blank and with data, and the extending the chapters exercises that take the students outside the box, which challenges students and connects them to the real world. Throughout the text assessment of student understanding provides the teacher with tools to measure student achievement. Assessment is provided in the conventional test-taking manner as well as suggested alternative testing methods. Available are various manuals to further assess and provide activities to reinforce the learning process. The publisher provides links to technology through an interactive CD-ROM on the Constitution and a CD on American government.

Economics, 4th Edition

04-40150 Pupil's Edition

Author: Taylor

0618381910 11–12 2004 $88.17

Economics is intended for use in an Advanced Placement (AP) Economics class; some high-performing honors classes might benefit from usage of this book. The author provides interesting examples that make the material being taught relevant to students. Definitions in the margins help to clarify concepts. The book incorporates examples that reflect cultural diversity. “Economics in the News” and “Economics in Action” encourage student synthesis and making connections. Limited student supplemental materials but the electronic tutorial is helpful.

Economics: Principles and Tools, 3rd Edition

04-40160 Student Edition

Author: O’Sullivan and Sheffrin

0130081515 09–12 2003 $82.97

This program is intended for Advanced Placement level students. The introduction to each chapter is contemporary in nature followed by practical questions that serve as objectives and interest “hooks.” The content coverage is appropriate for both macroeconomics and microeconomics. The “Using the Tools” and “A Closer Look” promote real-life connections with student experiences. Graphs and charts are well explained and easy to understand. “Test Your Understanding” questions following each section are a good way to keep the students focused on the materials. This program is readable, appropriate, and understandable for Advanced Placement students.

Principles of Economics, 3rd Edition 04-40180 Student Edition with Xtra! Card	Author: Mankiw 0324168624	09–12	2004	$86.00

The third edition of Principles of Economics is a valuable offering for both Advanced Placement (AP) Macro and Microeconomics. Benchmarks and content objectives required by the College Board are addressed in this comprehensive text. Economic models are presented clearly and understandably throughout the text. Numerous exhibits of quantitative models reinforce the text. Appropriate math problems and Web site references provide supplements for all learners.

The use of Greg Mankin's text will serve as a firm basal text upon which to build either the AP Micro or AP Macroeconomic course. Assessment tools are appropriate for the text and in line with the academic level of the text.

Sociology

Glencoe/McGraw–Hill
Sociology and You, 2nd Edition 04-40300 Student Edition	Author: Shepard 0078285763	09–12	2003	$58.50

Sociology and You is written for college-preparatory or honors high school students. It offers plenty of supplemental materials in addition to the teacher's wraparound edition. These materials include blackline masters, a teacher's CD-ROM, a test maker, transparencies, and a puzzlemaker. All of these are more than adequate. A Web site also supplies a great deal for teachers in the way of an up-to-date resource.

This series is well organized with section assessments and charts and graphs throughout the book. The range of questions, including higher-level questions, is consistent throughout the text. Projects are listed at the end of the chapters that allow for individual differences. Instructional objectives are presented at the first of each chapter. Many examples of other cultures are used as well as a mix with anthropology, etc. The text is very readable, and the index, table of contents, and glossary are well done.

Holt Sociology: The Study of Human Relationships 04-40310 Student Edition	Author: Thomas 0030550068	09–12	2003	$57.90

Holt Sociology: The Study of Human Relationships is recommended for college-preparatory and honors students. The series is very content specific. It has homework practice on-line and uses relevant issues. The series is well organized offering case studies, graphs, and section reviews with varying levels of higher order thinking skills (drawing conclusions and making inferences). Supplemental support is more than adequate with lesson plans, transparencies, videos, etc. Throughout the text, good examples and helpful information can be found. CNN also offers CNNfyi.com for current information.

Thomson Learning/The Wadsworth Group
Sociology in Our Times, 4th Edition 04-40320 Student Edition	Author: Kendall 0534588786	09–12	2003	$59.00

Publisher/Program/Title No.	ISBN	Grade	Copyright	Price
-----------------------------	------	-------	-----------	-------

Sociology in Our Times is recommended for honors students. The text is content specific. The text has been updated with new opening vignettes. The author also uses the true/false quizzes at the beginning of each chapter to get the students involved in discussion. Supplementary materials include an Exam View and a resource guide.

The format is attractive and text is presented in reader friendly manner. The materials offer a practice test that allows for individual differences. The text can be used as a yearlong course or a semester course, "Resources for Internet" section at the end also aids in research for the students. Each chapter is based on a topic that draws all information together.

ENGINEERING AND INDUSTRIAL TECHNOLOGY EDUCATION Industrial Technology Education I, II, III

Glencoe/McGraw-Hill Technology in Action 03-80400 Student Edition	Author: Thode, Thode 0078224896	07-12	2002	$32.49
--	---	-------	------	---------

Technology in Action is an introductory technology education program for middle school students. The goal of this activity-based program is technological literacy—the ability to use, manage, and understand technology. Action Activities in every chapter (total 66) engage students in designing and problem solving of everyday technological problems. Performance-based portfolio system CD-ROM includes material for students and teachers. Student material includes Chapter Overviews, Electronic TechNotes, and Career Study. Teacher material includes Power Point presentations to help explain concepts and introduce activities, solutions to text activities and assessment rubrics and tests. Science, math, and communication connections are featured in every chapter. Chapter and page design have been improved, dividing the chapters into short, self-contained sections with colorful pictures and hands-on activities.

Glencoe/McGraw-Hill Technology Interactions 03-80410 Student Edition	Author: Harms, Swernofsky 0078297265	07-12	2003	$35.49

Technology Interactions is designed to be used with 20 of the most popular technology education modules, providing an opportunity for students to apply technical principles to the solution of problems by actually designing and building projects. Each chapter takes a problem-solving approach to real world problems. Math, Science, and Communication connections prompt students to build academic skills through hands-on exercises. Career pages highlight the qualifications and employability skills needed for various occupations. Teacher productivity CD-ROM includes lesson plans in Microsoft Word, PowerPoint teaching slides for each chapter, and Exam View Pro test Generator.

Glencoe/McGraw-Hill Technology: Today and Tomorrow 03-80420 Student Edition	Author: Fales, et al 0078308291	07-12	2004	$36.48
--	---	-------	------	---------

Technology Today and Tomorrow is a comprehensive introduction to the problem-solving of technology, with content covering communication, manufacturing, construction, transportation, and bio-related technology. The “systems” and “problem solving” approach makes many cross-circular connections. Students design and build real world models in each chapter. Interviews profile diverse career opportunities related to technology. Included is a Teacher Resource binder and Testmaker software. The teacher Resource binder includes a program overview, course outlines 9, 18, and 36 week courses, and chapter-by-chapter lesson plans. This book is designed for a two-semester course.
